in the coop are seen to be not flowers, but a score white fautail pigeons. The peacocks on the ight are utterly cast down by the extraordinary dis play of pride in this pigeon coop. The birds are s full of their own glory as to fall over backward. Tammany at the Inauguration is the only thing on

The snowstorm undoubtedly kept many visitors to the show from taking their friends with them, so that the attendance was not quite up to that of the dog show. Chickens and pigeons do not appeal to the same tastes as do horses and dogs. There is a rural flavor about the poultry show that is missing in the horse and dog exhibitions. The truth is that there is not enough back yards in the whole city of New York ever to make chickens popular pets with the

Advancing through the aisles the spectator is attended by the familiar "potrack" of the guinea, the "quack-quack" of the duck, the angry sibilation of the goose, the crowing of the challenging chantleleer, the "cut-cut-a-ticut" of the hen, the cooing of the in the country.

No finer display of pigeons has been seen in this country. Every known variety is on exhibition, and big pouters might truly be called heavy swells, and the common blue rocks are insignificant beside them. The carriers are worthy of notice. They are the clipper ship of the air. Nothing is more curious than the ugly excre-cences on their eyes and beaks, which resemble carbuncles. One would think such swellings likely to retard the bird in his rapid flight.

The fine bronze turkey gobbler on the left weighs fifty-eight pounds. He is the Clydesdale of the show, It makes the Thanksgiving mouth water to look at And the ducks and geese-ah, there are son beanties among them, the wild and the domestic. In the restaurant of the Garden some that have been dressed for the table are exposed to view. Such such big streaks of fat! ture is the Chinese brown goose, with a topking that makes him look like a rhinoceros. The swans have no marks on their beaks, hence are not supposed to be of royal breeding. The show is deficient in swans. Among the game broks are a pair of Reeves pleasants that attract much attention. Their coloring is splendid. The tail of the cock is over fifty inches in length. It is marked much like a rattle-smake. This bird is the most interesting of the show. There are other pheasants in variety, but this fellow is a paragon.

Among the chickens are the useful and the ornamental, the champions of the pit and the kings of the barnyard, the buiky, sleepy, hazy Cachin and the noisy, industrious bantam, the black-breasted red games and the sliver dorkings. The proudest moment of the day was twenty-two minutes after 4 o'clock, when a fine sliver-pencilled Hamburg hen hald an egg. Her gentle cackle aroused the entire Garden, and every chicken seemed to be encouraging her to go on with the good work. The cocks crew, the hens sympathized, and the ducks and geese joined in the refrain. It was like a great family rejoicing over the birth of a son and heir.

The Cochin family is well represented. They are the Smiths of the poultry show. Their name is legion. There is surely a Hoke among them, and probably a few Johns.

The blg Brahmas catch the eve. Some of them weigh fifteen peunds, and they all seem made only for the table. They are as gentle as dogs, and will not resent a caress.

The show is deficient in frizzlies. A frizzly is chicken that comes out of the see hardward and the table. They are a green resent a caress, he show is deficient in frizzlies. A frizzly is ticken that comes out of the egg backward and all its feathers turned the wrong way. It is a good chicken, though never beautiful. In the poultry classes the following awards were

STRAY NOTES HERE AND THERE.

A large and strong-looking man entered Delmoni the walter came near fainting.

What must I do?" he asked of the head walter, who, ever alive to an emergency, instructed him to have one put on the fire at once, and to serve it as ordered-hot. It was done, and the guest ate it with a relish, drinking a bottle of beer with it, and con-cluding his strange repast with a plate of ice-cream.

On general principles, what could be more easily ventilated than the ordinary street car, with its numer-ous windows, a door at each end, and a row of ventilators along each side of the roof, not to mention in some cases the perforated inner roof which is especially recommended to the traveling public by the surface lines which use it! But how often, when one enters a street car in coid weather, does be encounter an atmosphere that can only be described as vile. There ought to be some remedy for this. The ventilators should be kept open constantly, and at each end of the line both deers should be flurg back and the free air of heaven allowed to blow through the car without let or hindrance for at least a full minute. The health antherities are properly taking steps to prevent the use of cocca matting on the floors of street cars. This soon becomes foul and fold, and cannot fail to furnish a lodging place for disease germs. Wooden racks are the right thing for car floors, but they should be frequently removed and the cars thoroughly swept and cleansed. The Health Department would also do well to impress on the companies the importance of thorough ventilation. recommended to the traveling public by the surface

The difficulty of a quick mental conversion from the old system of our grandfathers to the metrical is apparent when a man states his height in metres and his weight in Harald Hagen, the professional champion skater of Europe, now in this country, on being askel his height and weight replied that he was 1.86 metres in height, and weighed, in racing condition, seventeen It is no easy matter to understand at a thought that he is about six feet two and a half inches high, and weighs about 160 pounds. The metric system has been without a strong public champion in this country ever since the death of Alexander H. Stephens. It is slow in taking hold. Cloth is still measured by the yard, lumber by feet and inches, liquids by pints, quarts and gallons, and weights by pounds and ounces, grains and drachms.

The syndicate that established the town of Piedmont, Ala., several years ago is composed of what the world calls solid men of business. They live in Sew York, Philadelphia and Wilmington, Del., and have money enough to build two or three towns. Piedmont is in a lovely valley, in the heart of the iron and coal region. For three years it has been neglected. but the syndicate has just decided to continue the but the syndicate has just decided to continue the improvements begun with the "boom" of 1889, and to make the town a model in every way. The new hotel there is called the Calbonn, after Colonel John C. Calbonn, who has been selected by the syndicate to superintend the development of the place. Many of the towns that were started in the year of the great boom have died and been revived, and are now grow-ing again. Piedmont is to be numbered with them, and selling property, particularly real estate. When an important sale is made in New-York, for instance, the amount is at so much a front foot. Large value are better appreciated when reduced to the standard of front feet. Several of the leading cities of the United States, however, have never adopted the New United States, however, have never adopted the New-York method. In Washington real estate is sold by the square foot. In Chicago both methods are in vogue. In Philadelphia the front foot is seldom heard. Baitimore sells by the lot, without regard to front feet or square feet. Atlanta sells by the front foot. The front foot method seems to make the property appear more valuable tean it really is, and growing towns generally adopt it to impress the new-comer with the idea that he is in the midst of a great "boom."

Mr. Smith has selected as his Assistant Secretar of the Interior a well-known Georgia lawyer of middle age-T. Warren Akin, more than once Presidential elector. Mr. Akin is regarded as an able man, but his qualifications for office are of the most remarkable description. He is so nearly blind that he couldn't see an office-seeker ten steps away, and so deaf he couldn't hear one talk near at hand. He speaks in woispers, and walks as stealthilt as a panther. As Hoke Smith is big and active and noisy the team will pull together.

AFFAIRS IN BROOKLYN.

A BEGGAR WHO IS A CHOOSER. CARL FALL DID NOT LIKE THE FOOD GIVEN

TO HIM BY A MINISTER. Carl Fall, who lives with his wife and two children at No. 253 Johnson ave., caused some excitement yesterday at the parsonage of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Bushwick-ave, and Jefferson-st., by upbraiding the Rev. A. E. Frey, pastor of the church, for having sent to his home hard crusts of bread and old fat. Fall and his family are destitute, owing to his failure to find employment. A week ago Mrs Fall went to the minister's home and begged for and yesterday morning Mrs. Fall again went to the house and received a bag of food. When she reached home, the quality of the food made Fall angry, and taking the bag, he went to the minister's home with a friend and asked if he thought he was sending offal to pigs. "If your children are as hungry as you say," Pastor Frey is alleged to have replied, "they could eat anything!"

that his friend was compelled to tear him away in order to avoid an assault on the minister.

When Mr. Frey was seen yesterday he said that When Mr. Frey was seen yesterday he said that Fall had many times been helped by his wife, the food given being from his own table. Fall did not belong to his parish, and he thought, as he was a Catholic, he should seek assistance from the Church of the Holy Trinity, to which he belonged.

Yesterday afternoon Fall went about the neighborhood of his home showing the food and denouncing the minister.

in 1802 there were 1,030 fires and a loss of $2,552,574.

In each of eight fires the loss exceeded $75,000. The largest loss was $350,000 at Harbeck's Stores, and two firemen were killed at this fire. In the year ten arrests for arson were made. Two new fire districts have been created, and forty-seven firemen appointed. The were formed force now numbers 572 men and officers, and there are sixty-nine other employes in the department, fire bonts and eleven hook and ladder trucks in active service, and seven engines and three trucks in reserve. wires underground, the increase of the number of fire hydrants by 40 per cent, the inspection of hydrants by the firemen, permanent plers for the fire boats and the extension of the fire limits.
